

India in 2047 the Global Power House

India has become a great example of sovereignty and stronger national power after being independent from the British rule. Recently, we celebrated 75 years of independence for India through the initiative 'azadikaamritmahotsav' in 2022. As we have passed long 75 years after independence we can acknowledge the development in various aspects like infrastructure, technology, defence, healthcare sector, education etc. India has achieved so far. India has become self-reliant in major extent that it has taken part in exporting to other neighbouring countries. For that India has earned foreign exchange over the years which enhanced the economy of the country. In 2047, India will step into 100th years of independence which will be glorious and proud moment for us. So, for the next 25 years we are expecting to see major development in all the areas which can place India a better place globally. For that India must focus on more research and development for the next years in all the policies and global emergence of power. In this present essay, we will describe about the important aspects for enhancing the power of India in global view.

Understanding the effectiveness of power:

To create positive ways of India's constant growth we should first analyse what comprises national power. The national power of India signifies the manifestation with its defence power, economic strength and political strategies together. All these factors are co-related with strategic functions of the country like its industrial growth, infrastructure development, technological development, leadership skills and political stability. So, we should analyses all the important factors related to India's overall growth before taking any further initiative for its emerging power.

Emerging power in various aspects for India:

The economic growth of India is significant since independence which creates other paths of emerging power. As per international monetary fund India's economy forecasts to grow by 7% in this upcoming year which will place the country in 5th position all over the world. The economic growth rate of India is long-term which is enhancing positively over time for increasing globalization, low dependency ratio, investment rates, healthy savings, and integration of the global economy. India's GDP will also be improved to larger extent for government contribution, exports and investment values except private consumption.

In manufacturing industry India has placed a remarkable position over time. We can see development in various industries like coal, gas, iron, and petroleum, steel which will produce sufficient production for domestic and international exports consumption. Besides that we will find out development in major infrastructure development which build the basic needs of India stronger.

We can see major development in military modernization of India over the past years. India has become one of the strongest countries in defence power to protect the country from enemies. During the emergency needs of international outlook India has collaboratively work with other defence powers for building a strong protective force. India has contributed largely in the research and development for defence power by improving various missions to meet its goals. We can see Indian armed forces has gone through modernization stages in past years which improved the weapon system and platforms. The government of India must look into the emergency policies for implementing those effectively to bring development in major sectors. With strong policies we can expect strong economic and security growth in the upcoming years which will make India supreme in all aspects.

Conclusion:

India will celebrate 100th years of independent in 2047 which will be moment full of celebration. All Indian citizens are waiting for viewing major changes within time till the day come the final day of celebration as developed nation India. All country people want to see India at supreme place which can be possible with development in major areas over time. For that the government of India must work on implementing policies and monitoring it over time for its positive outcomes.

By : www.PDFSeva.com